The 6 F-Words of Child Development

Camp Guide Edition

Camp offers a unique environment for kids and youth in your FAMILY to have FUN, make FRIENDS, get active outside (FITNESS), develop new skills (FUNCTION) and make memories that last a lifetime (FUTURE).

Things to consider when... choosing a camp

PLAN EARLY:

Many camps fill up quickly and have limited funding options.

THINK ABOUT YOUR CHILD/ YOUTH'S INTERESTS:

- Do they like sports, arts and crafts or science? Look for camps that offer that type of program.
- Are you looking for a day camp or overnight camp? This will help you narrow down your camp options.

CONSIDER YOUR CHILD/ YOUTH'S SUPPORT NEEDS:

- Do they prefer small groups? Do they require 1:1 support?

CONNECT WITH THE CAMP TO DISCUSS YOUR CHILD/ YOUTH'S NEEDS:

- The more information you share about your child/youth's specific needs, the better prepared the camp can be to support them.
- Some examples of information to share are:
 - sensory needs
 - Augmentative Communication Devices
 - feeding and toileting needs
 - equipment

Things to consider when... preparing for camp

CONNECT WITH THE CAMP:

- Some camps may be able to have campers tour the facility before camp begins. If you think this would be valuable to your child/youth, contact the camp directly to see if they can arrange this.

TALK TO YOUR CHILD/YOUTH:

- Ask them how they are feeling about going to camp. Talk about their worries and what they are excited for.
- Show them pictures online or even drive by the camp so they can have a look themselves.

CONSIDER HOW YOU ARE FEELING:

- If you are feeling anxious about your child going to camp, likely they will too.
- Connect with the camp to discuss your concerns or reach out to other parents in the community who have been down this road before.
- Do whatever you need to do to feel better about sending your child/youth to camp.

Remember camp is supposed to be less stress and more FUN!

Things to consider when... going to camp

THINGS YOU MAY NEED TO TEACH THE STAFF ABOUT:

- physical equipment: walkers, wheelchairs, standers, etc.
- feeding needs/special diet
- Augmentative Communication Devices - high and low tech
- sensory needs and strategies
- self-regulation strategies

THINGS YOUR CHILD/YOUTH MAY NEED TO BRING TO CAMP WITH THEM:

- hat
- water bottle
- snacks/lunch
- bathing suit/towel
- change of clothes
- sunscreen
- backpack

Things to consider when... going to camp

*Please keep in mind that camp is NOT school.

- The counsellors and support staff are often students themselves and are doing their best to learn how to support a variety of campers with different needs.
- Be patient and keep the lines of communication open.
- Be realistic in your expectations of not only the staff, but of your child/youth as well.
- They may take a while to settle in and get comfortable in a camp setting and that's okay!
